And here is Djwhal Khul's latest Spirituality Article, information complimentary every Thursday:

(Channeling begins)

Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek.

Alright. We have quite a lot going on this week. Probably most significant is the Grand Cross. So we have a number of occurrences which really are kind of calling you into a Divine Focus and you might find that it is difficult for you to hold your attention right now or stay focused on a project without leaving it and coming back and that sort of thing. So there is a sense of scatteredness here.

The sky is saying that there are significant changes and that in order to stay "Present. Here. Now." in this physical existence one must flow with those changes.

We still have Uranus in our three year window, 2012 – 2015, that is like a yoyo constantly changing the plan. And then we have a number of things happening with Venus, we have the solar influences, the solar storms but the magnetic disturbances are the most significant in how it can scatter the body and scramble the mind.

There is literally a compass in the brain that knows North and South and East and West, and it is often getting scrambled now.

So this Present Moment is pretty much your practice and if you want to look up a little bit more on that Grand Cross, it is quite potent. That one I think will have an effect upon many lightworkers especially.

You can use that to elevate your consciousness even further. If you want to know more about what the sky is saying I suggest you start reading up on various astrologers or articles and things and that will help give you a broader perspective.

As always, thank you and my love to you.
